

Juanita Elementary School. Dyslexia 101 talk

COME TO OUR FIRST PTA PARENT ED NIGHT ON NOVEMBER 29TH @ 7:00pm

Have you ever known a child, student, parent, sibling, or friend, who is bright and intellectually engaged, but unexpectedly has difficulty mastering the written word? While there are many causes for difficulties with reading and writing, dyslexia is far more common and prevalent in our population than once was thought. Further, dyslexia is not, as many people think, backwards reading, but a far more complex neurological condition. The good news is that there is exciting research being done (including right here at the University of Washington) about how to effectively teach individuals with dyslexia to become accomplished readers and writers. If you are interested in learning more about how different individuals learn to read differently, and how struggling readers can improve substantially and even become accomplished wordsmiths, then please join us for our first PTA parent education night on November 29th at 7:00pm to hear Laura Rogan, MA, MEd, discuss the latest information on this topic in "Dyslexia 101." Open to all parents in the Lake Washington School District.
